Hi Michael.

Well this appears to me to be something of a change.

As Sabrina mentions she presented the spring 2012 NPL proposal schedule in August.

At that time ... (according to the Silverton Standard)

Forrest says the EPA hopes it can determine by Dec. 20 if there is enough local support for NPL listing to proceed. Under that timetable, the listing could be made official by March 2012.

So is the EPA planning to pursue NPL listing in 2012 at all?

Hi Mark, As you know, I shared the spring 2012 NPL proposal schedule with the community and ARSG this past summer, but EPA is not working toward a spring 2012 proposal and has not requested state concurrence.

Subject: Cement Creek

I am picking up some "chatter" indicating the EPA won't seek National Priorities List status for the upper Cement Creek problem in 2012.

Can you give me any indication of that?

I know the ARSG meets Thursday -- same day my paper comes out.
